Introduction:

By definition, training is a planned activity that aims to develop capabilities and technical, behavioral and managerial skills of the personnel. The purpose of doing that is enable them to achieve effective and fruitful performance so that the entity and personal individual goals with the highest possible efficiency are reached. At the federal government, training is considered to be a means of developing human capital that is depended on in raising the functional competency of employees. According to its modern concept, training and development shall be considered as a key strategic framework that supports performance as part of human resources development system, which is continuously sought by the government to achieve. The objective of doing that is to cope with the challenges posed by the changing work requirements, considering that training would lead to the transfer of the technical and practical knowledge in a way that enables the employee and the ministry or federal entity to deal with the changes and developments imposed by the cognitive acceleration within work environment, in addition to technical skills accompanying such changes.

The Guide Objectives:

1. To identify the fundamental principles of the federal government employees training and development system, and its connection to the other systems as part of human resources system.
2. To identify the objectives sought by training at the federal government and its followed mechanisms, and to educate the training officer on the continuing education fundamentals and its methodologies.
3. To be familiarized with the key training and development system stages, and ensure that the optimal implementation is made and to benefit from all training and development electronic system features so that training process is supported.
4. To establish the Federal Government training and development system basics, according to the stages and mechanisms provided by the electronic system in order to enhance usage and facilitate the procedures for the proper application of the systems.
5. To introduce the Federal Government E-Learning Portal Initiative (Al Mawrid), and the services provided to the employees and training officers in federal ministries and entities.

First, Principles of Training and Development System as Approved by the Federal Government:

The Federal Authority for Government Human Resources ensures to provide the best applications in the field of Federal Government human resources employees. It also constantly seeks to develop everything that chiefly backs work procedures and that guarantees their easy and smooth implementation. Moreover, it also operates within a methodology that does not ignore the interdependence of systems and makes sure to sustain their connection with laws and legislations, in addition to the vision and aspirations of the government about human resources empowerment. Therefore, the most important principles that the Authority has ensured to emphasize as part of the development and training system are as follows:

- To establish an integrated relationship between the federal government strategy priorities and training and development requirements.
- To strengthen the connection between performance management system and training and development system.
- To provide continuing and integrated training and development opportunities to all federal government employees.
- To guarantee transparency, equality, justice and equal opportunities in training and development process regardless of the job category to which the employee belongs.
- To develop criteria for measuring the extent of impact of results of applying training and development programs upon the institutional and individual performance.

Second, Objectives of Training and Development System and its Followed Mechanisms:

To consolidate the basic principles that are emphasized by the Authority in the field of training and development, it has kept in mind the importance of human resources and the necessity of developing their job performance. It has also taken the responsibility of providing all techniques supporting the federal entities to stress the importance of the training process, and the human resources department's role in organizing such a process and its procedures, where it aims to:

- To ensure that individual development plans are developed so that strengths are reinforced and performance – related development aspects are identified and tackled.
- To help the federal entities qualify the employees so that they can occupy the current and future vacant jobs by providing the various forms of training and development for their employees.
- To gauge the extent of impact of results of implementing training and development programs upon the institutional and individual performance.
- To develop training and development activities on the basis of using the best latest practices pertaining to the determination of training needs of the ministry and development of the required training plans.

Third, Training and Development Stages:

Training and development system at the Federal Government consists of four main stages:

Identifying Training and Development Needs:

The training, development and activities' priorities are determined as per the strategic requirements, initiatives and competencies, as well as the employees' annual performance appraisal results analysis. Moreover, the federal systems provide some supporting tools for such a process, where the individual development plan provides inputs that are based upon annual performance results. They also feed the basic data of training needs analysis form, which is conducted by the training officer, according to the main analysis factors through which the required fundamental knowledge and skills are elicited in order to develop the final training plan for the federal entity.

Training and Development Plans:

In the two months of March and April of each year, the concerned training department shall prepare the training plan for the entity, according to the final analysis of the training needs. This plan is conducted in consultation on that with all those concerned at the entity, where it is presented for final approval after modifications and comments are made to it by the parties concerned.

Implementation of Training and Development Programs:

The annual plan is implemented, according to the principles prescribed in the training and development system. Also, the Authority attempts to provide a number of initiatives that support the application process and seeks to optimally benefit from the available resources. Thus, the preferred training partners at the Federal Government initiative ((Maarif)) provides a broad base of the approved highly efficient training providers, in a manner that serves training plans and ensures the provision of effective programs to the federal entities with high quality standards.

As for ((Al-Mawrid)) Port, which is considered the most interactive electronic platform at the Federal Government's level, it works to provide electronic training programs that include various forms of training, such as electronic training and live virtual workshops as well as the read and recorded materials.

Review of Training and Development Programs Effectiveness:

This means the review of training input or outcomes, including improvement of training programs, and response to any change of needs, training program evaluation and review of the acquired skills. Thus, training process evaluation is considered to be one of the key indicators that contribute to improving the level of services provided. It also guarantees the investment value that is represented in human resources development. Therefore, it is necessary to ensure about the professional benefit is achieved.

Fourth, Training and Development System at Federal Government

Since the training and development process is considered to be a shared responsibility whose positive results are achieved only by that each party involved carries out the duties assigned to each optimally in light of responsibilities determined by such system. After all the entry of all individual development plans into the system is completed by employees during the month of February, the direct manager should collect and analyze training needs. Moreover, he has to create training plans via the electronic training and development system by following the steps below:

Gathering and analyzing training needs and creating training plans by using individual development plans:

Accessing the Individual Development Plans

To access the individual development plans for the entity's employees, you need to do that via "training officer screens", and select "training screen", then make an inquiry by selecting the plan year in the "fiscal year" field, and select (empty/vacant), which is the first option in the "applicable" field. Thus, the individual development plans are unclassified by yes/no by the training officer, and then "go" is selected.

Fifth, Federal Government E- Learning Portal Initiative (Al Mawrid)

For the purpose of achieving the desired results from employees training and development planning process, and preparing the development and training plan in line with the recent managerial practices, and contributing to providing support to the Federal Government training officers, the Federal Authority for Government Human Resources has launched the Federal Government E- Learning Portal Initiative (Al Mawrid) by late 2019. This is considered an integrated platform to provide all continuing education services, and also various self-learning sources that are directed in a manner that serves development of future cognitive and professional skills for Federal Government employees.

Advantages of Subscription to the Platform

When subscribing to “Al Mawrid” platform, training officers at the federal ministries and entities shall be able to:

- Manage the entity training courses.
- Obtain paid interactive electronic courses licenses.
- Link the professional competencies framework by the UAE Model for Government Leadership.
- Upload training materials (PDF-word-video-policies-procedures) and link them to the employee aptitude evaluation test.
- Conduct internal and external surveys at the Federal Government level and analyze the results.
- Use the virtual class feature in training or meetings.
- Activate smart report systems to manage training and knowledge.

Subscription to the Platform Requirements

In the event that the entity would like to prepare a full scenario about its own training plan, the training manager shall provide IT Corner Company that manages “Al Mawrid” platform with the following requirements:

- Training needs analysis list if any, and in case that there is no list, the Company shall create a scenario about the individual training plan for each employee at the entity, as per the determinants below:
 - Job grade
 - Job category
 - Job family
- In case the plan is approved by the Training Department, it is reflected upon “Al Mawrid” platform, and the Company shall be entrusted with the task of training the team that is concerned with training at the entity on how to be nominated to join training courses, obtaining the reports from the platform and dealing with “Al Mawrid” platform features.
- Each entity can present its own professional courses in word- pdf format to manage Al Mawrid” platform to be converted to an interactive material. Moreover, the aim is to make it available on the system with a classification for the entity, where the due fees and cost must be paid for one time, it has no paid licenses.
