Objectives

The club seeks to achieve several objectives, including:

- Create an intellectual and knowledge communication base resource.
- Exchange views and discuss the challenges and solutions to the issues to develop the human capital and institutional services in the various business areas.
- Exchange the experience and expertise among speakers and participant.
- Review and transfer of best practices locally, regionally and internationally and provide innovative solutions tremendously successful.

Offering Methods

The club organizers are keen to ensure diversity in the presenting methodologies of addressed topics, knowledge exchange and address issues related to organizations' needs.

It comes through:

- Showing successful practical experiments in Human Capital Management, Applying systems of Public Administration, Support and Assistance, Strategic Planning and Technical Solutions, etc., by attracting local and international personages to talk about their successful experiences, and attracting speakers from Expertise Houses, Consultancy Firms and Leading Universities to talk about the latest developments in the Human Resources Field and Human Capital Development.

Membership and Benefits

The club since its launch has attracted more than 12000 members working in various sectors at the state level.

The club membership is free for all.

The club provides its affiliates with a perfect opportunity to learn the best practices, learn from the success stories of many individuals and Organizations, and interacting with experts and interested parties within their respective field.

The club is keen to communicate with its affiliates through website, e-mail and various social networking channels.

Future Plans

Based on its commitment to promote the message of the HR Club and expand its beneficiaries, FAHR established an advisory board for the club which is composed of several members whose membership is honorary and represent the most prominent personages working in Human Resources Field, in addition to Consultancy Firms and Prestigious Universities. The board will meet periodically to exchange views on the upcoming topics and select the speakers. The club has designed ambitious future plans to enhance its position that achieve the vision of the UAE, adopting best practices in government as it seeks to:

- Partnerships with international human resources institutions
- Attract a larger number of members from private institutions, semi-government and academic staff and students.
- Provide promotional offers to members and offer them special rates to attend seminars and training courses.
